

More uranium ground for Siburan

Siburan Resources Ltd says it has entered into an agreement to acquire EL 29/637 from Nickelore Ltd at its Lake Marmion uranium project, which is "highly prospective for the discovery of new uranium deposits". The acquisition, along with other recent applications for exploration licences, expands Siburan's Lake Marmion project from 416sq km to more than 1,300sq km. The project area is south east of the Western Australian town of Menzies. Managing director Noel Ong said: "We are very excited to have amassed such a strategic package of ground as it gives Siburan a large area to explore and this is the first time the whole package is being controlled by one company. There is no doubt that there is uranium mineralisation in these channels. We will now work systematically to maximise the potential for finding a deposit."
